DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Dr. Montz House (see photo 1) is a two-story, five-bay Federal residence with a one-story, two-bay wing on the west. The main block appears to have been built during the first quarter of the nineteenth century--the wing added shortly later. The centered entrance of the main block (see photo 2) contains double doors that are paneled and have a four-pane transom above. Surmounting the entrance is a flat, shallow hood supported by two consoles. This element seems to have been truncated. There is diminutive ornamentation in relief on the lintel's center and on the consoles. All windows of this section are nine-over-six pane sash with recessed wooden lintels above the heads.

The wing is built flush with the main block, and its openings on the front include an entrance with a three-pane transom and a twelve-over-eight pane sash window. Both the door and window have a segmental relieving arch above. The main block and wing are of brick laid in common bond and both are covered by a gabled roof. Each of the three chimneys is built into the wall.

A one-story, three-bay porch added to the front during the Victorian era (see photo 1a) was removed in 1967. At the rear are frame appendages and a small, shed-roofed porch added ca. 1900 (see photo 3). Iron fencing that was at the property's front during the latter half of the nineteenth century (see photo 1a) was removed and transplanted to serve as balcony railing upon the later addition of another frame section in the 1900s. The original kitchen was probably a detached building no longer standing.

The two-story brick section consists of a central hall with two rooms on each level. Access between the floors is by a "dog leg" staircase at the hall's north end (see photo 4). The decorative stringers provide a strong contrast to the simple hand-railing, newel posts and balusters.

Of the two parlors, only the mantel in the west is original (see photo 5). Stylistically Federal, this mantel is in accordance with the elaborately profiled baseboards and with the paneled door frames and jambs. To one side is a cupboard whose panels diminish in size upwards. A second cupboard flanks the mantel in the single-room wing (see floor plan), but this lacks multi-panels. The wing's mantel is plainer also, but repeated interior elements include baseboards, paneled openings with "bull's eye" corner blocks, and paneled window aprons.

Although the frame sections were added ca. 1900, they feature openings with the same type of corner blocks as those in the earlier brick sections. A marked difference, however, is the presence of high dados in the frame portions (see photo 6). The second floor of the brick portion has been altered only by the installation of a bathroom. Woodwork of this level is simpler than that below; the two mantels are narrower and the baseboards are less ornate. Openings, however, repeat the same treatment as those of the first floor, and there are paneled aprons beneath the windows.

Currently, the Dr. Montz House serves as rental property for two households and is in good condition.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

Dr. Lucy Dupuy Montz, who is reputed to have been Kentucky's first woman dentist¹, established her office and resided for many years in the fine two-story, Federal style house on High Street in Warsaw, Kentucky.

The Montz House is one of numerous early 19th century buildings in the river town of Warsaw. Originally known as Fredericksburg, the community is an old shipping port that dates to the early 1800s. It became the county seat in 1838, with the county itself dating to 1798. Warsaw is approximately 60 miles north of Frankfort and about the same distance to Cincinnati by boat (Gray, p. 36). The house, with the Ohio at its back, is located in an older residential area, within two blocks of the courthouse and the downtown commercial district.

The original owner of the property on which the Montz House sits was Robert Johnson (1745-1815), the founder of Warsaw. Johnson was a prominent political figure in Kentucky's early history and is generally associated with Scott County. The property was sold and resold several times before its purchase in 1838 by Joseph Lillard from Edward A. Turpin. In the deed, the lot was said to contain "a brick dwelling and other improvements" (Deed Book, p. III). Turpin, therefore, could well have been the builder. In 1885, the house was bought by Henrietta Dupuy, who deeded it to her daughter Lucy in 1895.

Lucy Dupuy, born in 1842 near Warsaw, was married at age 18 to Francis P. Montz, identified in local histories as "a steamboat man." Apparently she and her husband soon moved to Covington where she began teaching in the public schools. Later in ¹According to local tradition, Dr. Montz has always been credited with being the first woman dentist in Kentucky. Among the lists of early dentists in Kentucky compiled by Robert Sprau, none can be identified as women prior to the time of Dr. Montz's registration. However, many surnames are given with first initials only. Sprau states that Lucy Beaman Hobbs Taylor (b. 1833), a native of New York, was the country's first woman dentist. She was unable to gain admittance to a dental school but was accepted as a student by a doctor in Cincinnati, Ohio. In 1861 she opened her own dental office, but because of a lack of patients, moved to Iowa where she established a successful practice (Sprau, p. 163).

her teaching career, after her husband had died, Mrs. Montz decided on becoming a dentist, concluding that the field of medicine was out of her reach. She attended the Cincinnati College of Dental Surgery where she graduated with honors in 1889. Dr. Montz subsequently joined the faculty of the college.

In 1891, at the age of 47, Dr. Montz returned home to Warsaw and secured the necessary registration to practice dentistry (Medical Register, p. 15). In 1893, she was elected to membership in the Kentucky State Dental Association, the first woman to be so elected. Local sources also report that in the same year, at the Worlds Columbian Exposition in Chicago, her name was inscribed with honors in the Kentucky Building as the only woman dentist in the State of Kentucky.²

Dr. Montz made her home while in Warsaw in the brick house deeded her by her mother, establishing her dental office in the east parlor. She is thought to have retired around 1918, and, soon after moved to Madison, Indiana, to live with a niece.³ She died there in 1922 and was buried in the family lot in Warsaw.

The house in which Dr. Montz practiced for over 20 years is little altered from its late 19th century appearance. Windows and doors piercing the main facade are in tasteful proportion with the overall massing; lintels over the windows and the hood above the main entrance avoid a feeling of severity. The frame appendages at the rear are not visible from the street, so the passer-by views a Federal style residence that strongly retains its early 19th-century character.

²Journal of the Kentucky Dental Association, p. 84.

³In the records of the Board of Dental Examiners, it is reported that Dr. Montz's license was "cancelled" in 1918. No explanation was given. However, licenses were "cancelled" often times upon the retirement of the dentist, the action not being synonymous with the revocation of a license. Therefore, the cancellation of Dr. Montz's license was most likely on the occasion of her retirement in 1918, not 1921, as is stated in local histories.

Interior woodwork of the Dr. Montz House is heavy and bold. Its features are exemplary of the style that acted as a passage between the Georgian period and the Romantic Revivals. Fortunately, most of these fittings have been kept and are in a good state of preservation, as are the original poplar flooring to the brick portions.

Dear Doctor Morgan:

In regard to the fine old Federal style house here in Warsaw, known as the Mr. Lucy Mupny Montz House, I wish to recommend that it be included in the listings of historical structures worthy of preservation. (1842-1922)
Mr. Montz practiced dentistry here in Warsaw from 1893 until 1920. She had the honor of being the first woman dentist in Kentucky, and possibly one of the first in the United States.

The house was built sometime between 1832 and 1838, and stands on land which originally belonged to Robert Johnson (1745-1815), the founder of Warsaw in 1800. He also lived at Great Crossing, Scott Co., Ky. I was born here in Warsaw in 1906, grew up here, and have long been interested in the history of its people and its architecture. In 1948 I published a small book "The Early History of Gallatin County", and have written many historical articles for the Gallatin County News.

I trust the Montz House will receive the recognition it so richly deserves.

Sincerely yours,

I am writing to recommend the home-office of Dr. Lucy for placement on the National Register of Historic Places.

The house is a charming one -- flat-front Federal, center hall, identical chimneys at either end of the house -- a very good example of early American architecture. The woodwork and mantels are lovely, still in good repair.

As a co-editor of the weekly county newspaper, the Montz lovely old home may be nominated. It will be Gallatin County's
