SLIGO BAPTIST CHURCH ON PATTONS CREEK

The earliest record that is found for Sligo Church is 1801 when John Duprey moved to Oldham County and was pastor of the church on Pattons Creek for 36 years. In 1837 he moved to Shelby County, was 99 years of age. John Duprey was born 17 March 1738—baptized 16 June 1771—ordained 1774—moved to Kentucky in 1784. Rev. Duprey settled in Woodford County and united with South Elkhorn Baptist Church before moving to Oldham County.

In 1838 the Sligo membership moved on the ridge to Sligo and worshiped in a log building. In 1853 they moved across the road to the present site. Sligo Church was a member of the Long Run Association in 1813.

(Note: This information was found on a loose piece of paper in church books at Sligo in May, 1982. There were other bits of information as well. John Taylor was pastor of Corn Creek in 1800 with 21 members.)

From Corn Creek Church minutes of April, 1818: William Buckley, a Baptist preacher, offered his letter of dismission from the church on Pattons Creek in Henry County (now Trimble) and was received by this church.

Mrs. Bessie Powell Jennings told of the first Sligo Church being on Pattons Creek. There was a cemetery at the church site until in the 1940's when a land owner removed the stones down beside the creek. They were then covered when the new road was built. The present owners of the farm are Mr. and Mrs. Norvin Jennings, and a mobile home is near where the church stood. There have also been descendants of the Rev. Duprey that have tried to find information of the Sligo Church on Pattons Creek where he was a former pastor.

Records of deaths found in Sligo Church Books (Henry Co., Ky.):
